China: A New History is literally a text book. It's what college students are often assigned as their base resource for a class likely to be called "China Studies 101" or "Chinese History 101". It's the kind of thing that professors assign, but students rarely read all the way through.

He completed China: A New History in 1991, just before his death at age eighty-four. For Fair-bank to think, at that stage of his life, that China was in need of a new history suggests how the scholarly discipline he helped create had changed over the past 50 years and, especially, over the past five.
